DOS LAGOS WINS PLANNING PROJECT AWARD
Inland Empire Section of the American Planning Association applauds the development's mixed-use standard.

CORONA, Calif. – The Inland Empire Section of the American Planning Association has awarded the mixed-use community of Dos Lagos, in Corona, Calif., with the association's Planning Project Award.

Dos Lagos was the first mixed-use community proposed in western Riverside County. It has been used as a model of responsible development, combining the social environmental and economic needs of a project into a design that protects nature, preserves history and promotes a sustainable way of life.

Located along Interstate 15 in south Corona, Dos Lagos blends a variety of housing styles with an upscale lifestyle retail center, entertainment, golf, a business conference hotel, class A office space and live-work lofts, all centered around two signature lakes and a distinctive bamboo-covered bridge, referred to as the heart of the project.

The award will be presented Wednesday, May 9, to Ali Sahabi, president and CEO of SE Corporation, the master developer of Dos Lagos. The awards dinner takes place from 5-8 p.m. at the historic Mission Inn, 3649 Mission Inn Ave., Riverside.

As a winner in the Planning Project Award, Dos Lagos is under consideration for a state award from the California Chapter of the American Planning Association.

Visit www.calapa.org for award details, or www.doslagos.net for information on the award-winning community.
